TWO CENTS

COMMISSIONERS APPROVE NEW ROAD BETWEEN DONORA AND MONON

Made Inspection First Of PARTY IS HELD AT HOME OF MISS MORRIS Week And Decided To Improve At Once

TWO OTHER ROADS TO BE BUILT

The Board of County Commissioners, after making a tour of inspection of the roads in the county early in the week, which ended at Black Diamond last Wednesday evening, decided to take action. The Commissioners, together with County Controller Underwood and County Engineer Cheney, inspected the Taylors town road in Buffalo township, the East Pike Run highway, and the Donora-Monongahela road. The latter road was the last one to be inspected, and after going over it the Commissioners took a vote on the various propositions and decided that all three roads should be improved this summer.

This locality is more directly interested in the Donora-Monongahela road, which will not only be re-paved, but will be made wider and more modern in every respect. It is likely that it will be paved with cement. There will be no grading necessary as this has already been done, the greater part of the work being the re-paving. The present road is 12 feet wide, while it is proposed to make the new highway 18 feet. This change is really necessary because of the heavy traffic between Donora and Monongahela. The East Pike Run highway is also an important one, and will be greatly appreciated by the people of that section.

John O. Watson, President of the Board of Commissioners, has labored hard to secure the improvement of these highways, and he is gratified that official action has now been had and the stamp of approval placed on the work. County Controller Underwood is expected to advertise for bids very shortly with a view of having the work placed under way in a very short time.

FRATERNAL VISIT BY ODD FELLOWS

About thirty-five members of Charleroi Lodge, No. 1030, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, paid a fraternal visit to Zeno Lodge, South Side, Pittsburgh, Friday evening. The local members went down on the 5:08 train and returned on the "bummer." Members of Zeno Lodge gave the Charleroi members a very cordial reception, and a feature of the evening was the exemplification of a portion of the secret work. Following the meeting of the lodge a social session was held, during which fraternal greetings were exchanged. Lunch was served by Zeno Lodge, a feature enjoyed by all.

ADVISE PUTTING IN WINTER COAL NOW

Early buying of next winter's supply of coal was urged upon the public by the fuel administration from Washington on Friday. The administration asserted that coal was more plentiful now than it would be for some time to come in view of anticipated heavy coal exportation and that the public would have no better opportunity to place orders than at present.

TO SPEAK SUNDAY EVENING

OLIVER W. STEWART.

Hon. Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, formerly a member of the Illinois State Legislature, will give an address in the Christian church, Sunday evening, March 23rd, at 7:30 o'clock, in the interest of world-wide Prohibition of the Liquor Traffic. The subject of his address will be "The Victory! How It Was Won." Mr. Stewart will lay special emphasis on the need of legislative enactment of laws which will enforce prohibition.

He comes this way under the auspices of the Flying Squadron Foundation, of which Hon. J. Frank Hanly, former Governor of Indiana, is at the head.

Date Fixed For Wednesday Next At The County Seat

TAXPAYERS ASKED TO ATTEND

Washington county proposes to take a definite stand in the matter of road building. A meeting of all those interested in the promotion of a definite highway plan for future road building by the state, county and townships, has been called for next Wednesday, March 26th, at 11 o'clock, in the public meeting room of the court house at Washington. Those signing the call for the meeting are John W. Warwick, chairman of the good roads committee of the Washington Board of Trade; Kerfoot W. Daly, president of the Washington County Automobile Association, and J. M. McKee, the county agriculturist, secretary of the County Good Roads Association.

For some time there has been a request made in various organizations for such a meeting, the general feeling throughout the county being that insofar as it is possible all the citizens should be united in urging some definite road construction plan to be worked out during the next few years.

The call sent out by the officers named above sets forth that recognizing the necessity of being united as a people, and that concerted action on the part of all civic and public spirited organizations is necessary for the promotion of a highway program, a public meeting of citizens is requested to be held Wednesday next, March 26, at 11 a. m. Every civic, commercial, automobile and grange organization in the county will be represented.

In the plans as now set forth by the State Highway Commissioner our county is given but little consideration, and it is with this people to make such presentations as will compel greater recognition on the part of the state.

To the Readers of the Charleroi Mail: This will announce to you that the greatest picture of the day, "THE GREAT VICTORY, WILSON OR THE KAISER? SENATOR LODGE'S POSITION

In his closing address at the Lodge-Lowell debate held in Boston Wednesday night, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge said:

"I am engaged in dealing with the people of the United States. I hope from my heart that it will be amended. I hope that we shall have a league in proper form, properly prepared. I hope it will be done—done somewhere before the end is reached. In my belief it will be done somewhere—and not in Paris."

"The Senate, under the Constitution, has the right to advise and consent. If the President of the United States had done what other presidents had done, if he had laid that (the proposed amendment) before the Senate—if he had followed the example of other presidents, then we could have taken constructive action. It was done by Andrew Jackson, by Gen. Grant, by George Washington, and by Abraham Lincoln. And in the path that George Washington and Abraham Lincoln have walked there is no man too great to tread."

"If the President had laid that draft before the Senate, as these other presidents have done, if he had said to the Senate:

"I submit this draft to you for your advice. I hope for your approval and for such suggestions as you may have to make," he would have the amendments laid before him to present to the peace conference in Paris. The battle would have been more than half won by the mere submission."

"He not only did not lay it before the constitutional body which is entitled to advise him, but he does not call the Senate together now to consider it. If they want to know in Paris what amendments were required, call together the constitutional advisors of the President and the amendments will be drafted and sent. But one Senator cannot speak with authority for the entire body. Call them together and the amendments will be presented, and if they are adopted the treaty will be ratified in very short order."

AEROPLANES AND FISH

A new use for the aeroplane is suggested and will very likely be experimented with this spring, when the Gloucester fishing fleet puts out to sea in search of mackerel. The problem is always to find the mackerel schools which follow the coast north from the neighborhood of Cape Hatteras, and the plan now under consideration by the fishing interests of Gloucester and the Navy Department at Washington would provide the fleet with aeroplane scouts. Each machine presumably will carry a fisherman experienced in locating and identifying schools of fish. It is true nowadays to liken aircraft to birds, but the airplanes that go out with the fishermen will add a new point of resemblance. They will be looking for fish.

To Whiten Wax.

The wax should be boiled in water, spread out into thin layers and then exposed to the light and air. Repeat this process until all the color is gone, and the wax will remain pure and white.

PECULIAR TEST FOR GUILT

Most of Us Would Rather Take Chances With Even a Jury Than Be Judged

When a judge or jury sits in the courtroom to decide a case, the accused is often asked to take an oath. This is a solemn promise to tell the truth. But what if the accused is not a religious person? What if he or she does not believe in God? Can they still take an oath? This is a question that has been asked many times in the history of the law. Some judges have said that an oath is not necessary for a person to be tried. Others have said that it is. The law is not clear on this point.

In the presence of the judge, the accused is asked to take an oath. The judge says: "Do you swear to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth?" The accused answers: "I do."

It is this oath that is the test for guilt. If the accused swears to tell the truth, then the judge can believe what the accused says. If the accused does not swear, then the judge cannot believe what the accused says. This is a simple test, but it is a test that has been used for many years.

If he has taken the oath, the judge will believe what he says. If he has not taken the oath, the judge will not believe what he says. This is a simple test, but it is a test that has been used for many years.

FOUNDATION OF ALL SUCCESS

Energy Has Been Well Defined as the Very Central Power of Character in Man.

Energy enables a man to force his way through drudgery and dry details, and carries him onward and upward in every station in life, says Sturges. It accomplishes more than genius. Energy of will may be defined to be the very central power of character in a man—in a word, it is the man himself. True hope is based on it—and it is hope that gives the real impetus to life. No blessing is equal to the possession of a stout heart.

Charles IX of Sweden was a firm believer in the power of will, even in a youth. Laying his hand on the head of his youngest son, when engaged upon a difficult task, he exclaimed, "He shall do it! He shall do it!" Nothing that is of real worth can be achieved without courageous working. The timid and hesitating find everything impossible, chiefly because it seems so. It is pluck, tenacity and determined perseverance which wins soldiers' battles, and, indeed, every battle.

The reply of the Spartan father who said to his son, when complaining that his sword was too short, "Add a step to it," is applicable to everything in life.

The Panama Canal.

It has been said that water at the Pacific end of the Panama canal is permanently higher than it is in the Caribbean sea at the northern end of the canal. The statement of the canal commission is to the effect that there is no difference between mean sea-level in the Caribbean sea at Colon and mean sea-level in Panama bay on the Pacific side of the isthmus, but at Colon the tide rises only about nine inches above mean sea-level and falls nine inches below mean sea-level; while at Panama the water at high tide rises to ten feet above sea-level and falls at low tide to ten feet below mean sea-level. The water at Panama at high tide is slightly more than nine feet above elevation of the water at Colon while at low tide the situation is reversed and the water at Panama is slightly more than nine feet below the level of the water at Colon. One of the reasons for building a locked canal 85 feet above sea-level is that there are sometimes rain-floods created by the Chagres river, which has been known to rise 25½ feet in 24 hours.

In Affection's Garden.

In the garden of our affections, there are certain loyal natures that continue faithful through all things. In the kingdom of vegetation there are certain finely organized and sensitive growths of power and vice, which are so susceptible to warmth and light, and beauty, that they do nothing all their lives but look at the sun. In the dawn, with a sublime faith, they watch the east for his coming. Turning on their slender stems day long, they follow him as he makes the circuit of the sky; and at twilight, after he has sunk from sight, we behold again these flowers. Our faces westward now, with the low drops shining on their petals, like eyes gathered in the eyes of parted friendship.—John McLaughlin.

Inflation as a Defense.

The puffer fish affords a novel example of the way nature sometimes works to protect her creatures. The many different species inhabit all tropical and other warm seas and certain large rivers. Few of them reach a length of more than two feet. The peculiar characteristics common to all of them is their ability to inflate themselves with air or water until they become almost spherical in shape. The air or water that fills the abdomen or the esophageal sac is retained by a valve in the throat, and can be discharged almost instantly.

KEEP GOAT IN BACK GARDEN

All Kinds of Reasons Why the Newlyweds Should Give Some Consideration to the Animal.

The cartoonist, with whom the Newlyweds are a favorite if somewhat hackneyed subject, may sharpen a fresh pencil; the day is coming, if not already here, when the joys and sorrows of young wedlock may be pictured from a new angle. We are familiar with the Newlyweds' bungalow, with their baby, with their Timmie, fruitful of mishaps; soon with these stock possessions may be listed another—tomorrow a goat.

One may keep a goat in the ordinary city or suburban back yard. Eleanor Atterbury writes in Sunset. No extensive pasturage is required as in the case of the cow. If a vacant lot or but a hillside be available a goat will thrive on what it can glean there, though a cow, horse, or even a sheep might starve. But our suburbanite Newlyweds presumably must keep their goat within the confines of their own back garden. Very well; every one may still be happy including the goat. For the goat will contentedly resolve into milk and mutton any kind of vegetable or green stuff that grows in the garden. Weeds enrage her; she will eagerly devour, and with great profit to herself and owner, the results of a strenuous morning's weeding on the part of Mr. Newlywed. By-products of the kitchen, such as the parings of fruit and vegetables, are welcome, though it must always be remembered that contrary to general belief the goat is a clean feeder; the garbage must go to the chickens, not to the goat.

Briefly, a single goat may almost be kept on the waste from a garden, and the feed of a cow will maintain seven or eight goats.

HERE'S DEFINITION OF "PEP"

Altogether It's a Quality of Which Its Fortunate Possessor Is to Be Envious.

It's the thing which makes the lamb gambol with glee, the colts prance with joy, the calves throw up their tails and run like fury, the birds sing in split-throat notes, the frogs croak upon the creek bank, the insects buzz and hum in the air, the milkman whistles as he jogs along, the blacksmith laughingly heat the iron auto shape, the plowman urge his horses with a "gee-up, there," the engineer wave a kiss to his sweetheart as he throws open the throttle, the woodman skillfully plunge his axe into the giant tree, the banker and merchant rush to their work with a cheery "bye-bye," the mechanic and laborer fairly dance to their jobs, the soldier "go over the top," with clinched jaws and courage that knows no fear, the live salesman hie to his calls with shoulders squared, pride in his heart, and nerves a-tingle with anticipation, of new success.

Oh, "pep" is anything that puts happiness in the heart, energy in the body, determination in the soul, and invincible courage in the will.—Exchange.

Exploration of Nineveh.

The great rediscoverer of Nineveh, was, of course, Sir Henry Layard, who, in the early forties of last century, having obtained the patronage of Stratford Canning, British ambassador at Constantinople, himself an enthusiastic archaeologist, journeyed to Mosul and commenced work of excavation on the mounds of Nineveh in earnest. The story of the wonderful series of discoveries which followed has been told vividly in his book, "Nineveh and Its Remains," published in 1848. This work created a great sensation, and the following year Layard set out east once again, this time as the agent of the British Museum, with a grant of $15,000 to carry still further his great work at Mosul. For more than a year his labors went on steadily. The palaces of Sennacherib and Ashurbanipal at Kuyunjik were partly uncovered, as well as those of Sennacherib and Esarhaddon at Nebi-Yunus, and in 1853 Layard published an account of his second series of excavations in his book, "Nineveh and Babylon."

Famous Old Town of Mosul.

The town of Mosul reached its greatest prosperity toward the beginning of the decline of the caliphate, when it was for a time an independent capital. In the eleventh century it belonged to the Seljuks and in the twelfth, under the sway of the famous Atabegs, particularly of Zenki, it had a short period of splendor. One of its curious distinctions in history is the fact that the governorship of the town, as the pashana, was long hereditary in the originally Christian family of Abd-al-Jalil, and it was only during the nineteenth century that the porters succeeded, after a long and severe contest, in establishing a more centralized system of government.

Numerous Rubber Plants.

There are nearly two hundred different kinds of plants which carry rubber, and they are still under investigation by botanists. While the plants are found for the most part in the arid portions of the Great Basin country of eastern California and Nevada, rubber-producing shrub has been located as far north as Washington and Idaho and as far east as Colorado and south to our southern boundary.

Whether or not these plants will be brought under cultivation is a question which can only be answered after many years of study and experimentation.

Ivory Mats.
There are but three mats of ivory in existence. The largest one measures 8 by 4 feet; and, although made in the north of India, has a Greek design for a border. It is used only on state occasions, like the signing of important state documents. The cost of this precious mat was almost incalculable, for more than 6,400 pounds of pure ivory were used in its construction. Only the finest and most flexible strips of the material could be used and the mat is the finest woven fabric.

World's Debt to the East.
Civilization was born in the East. For ages letters, art, religion flowed westward from Asia. When Europe was a wilderness, peopled only with savage, wandering tribes, learning and government flourished beyond the Danubius. From Armenia, Syria and Persia came both the Jewish and the Christian religions, the alphabet and much of science. Long since the tide turned. Civilization among these eastern peoples began to ebb, and they have slipped far back toward their pastoral days.

Beware of Compromises.
One temptation in making difficult decisions is to compromise. You aren't sure which way is the best, you seek to combine the advantages of both, and many a time merely combine all the disadvantages. To be sure, there are times when a compromise is the wisest course, but there are just as many times when it is cowardice and weakness. How can one tell which times are which? Well, that is simply another decision for you.

Passed Up Tempting Offer.
William Ewart Gladstone, the great statesman, refused tens of thousands of pounds offered to him for articles by publishers. It is said that an American magazine proprietor once sent him a blank check and told him to fill it up for any amount he pleased so long as he sent him 2,000 words for his magazine. Mr. Gladstone returned the letter and the check also as blank as it arrived.

Winter Reading.
Books of natural history make the most cheerful winter reading. I read in Audubon with a thrill of delight, when the snow covers the ground; of the magnolia, and the Florida keys, and their warm sea breezes; of the fence rail, and the cotton tree, and the migrations of the rice bird; of the breaking up of winter in Labrador, and the melting of the snow on the forks of the Missouri.—Thoreau.

That Much Assured.
A somewhat impecunious young fellow rashly engaged himself to a charming young thing, who shortly after the excitement had subsided began to evince doubts. Said she: "How long, dearie, do you think we shall have to be engaged?" "Well, sweetheart," said the young man cheerily, "I have enough money to last for six months, I think."

Equal Right, But No Favor.
"I suppose," said a lady to a trolley car conductor, "if I pay the fare for my dog he will be treated the same as other passengers, and be allowed to occupy a seat?" "Of course, madam," the conductor replied politely. "He will be treated the same as other passengers, and can occupy a seat provided he does not put his feet on it."

Conserving Tin Cans.

All over the world many uses are found for used five-gallon tin cans. In the Orient, Africa, Latin-America, the West and East Indies, the natives purchase them for innumerable purposes. There are men engaged solely in buying and selling these containers. The tinsmith converts the containers into all kinds of household utensils—lamps, cook stoves, pots, baking pans, sprinklers, small pumps, plates, measures, drinking cups, rat-traps and buckets. With one face removed and glass substituted therefor the can becomes a display box for grocery stores, or a rice container. Cut diagonally in two it serves as a dust pan. In Latin-American cities it is used by peons to cut grass in parks, being formed into a sort of knife. Used entire it is good for shipping camphor, lime, alcohol and molasses. It makes an excellent flower-pot.

Faces of Nature in Mountains.

This country, above all others, abounds in faces of nature. All the eastern and middle states are dotted with mountains and hills in a thousand varying shapes, and it would be strange if nature had not indulged in her well-known freaks. On the Hudson river, St. Anthony's Nose is a prominent object, and there are other faces well known to the traveler. In the White mountains, the Old Man of the Mountains has been a wonder to tourists for many years. In the Rockies, faces of nature are numerous, and as the region is becoming more fully explored, amazing shapes are daily discovered. Elephants, bears, lions, crouching tigers, as well as human faces and forms loom up before the astonished tourist.

Simple Pleasures Best.

How sweet and wholesome are the pleasures that go into small room—the humble, simple, accustomed sights and sounds that bring the soul at once into the open air.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Friendship Shows Worth.

I often find myself going back to Darwin's saying about the duration of a man's friendship being one of the best measures of his worth.—Anne Thackeray Ritchie.

Education Through Parties.

The average man's initials are familiar to the people of his community, but nobody ever knows his full name until his wife gives a party.—Topeka Capital.

One of the First Rules.

"Boxing," says the Chicago News, "is a healthful exercise." So it is—only due hygienic care should be exercised in selecting your opponent.

MICHIGAN ONCE HAD SLAVES

Only in 1836 Did Human Chattels Become Unprofitable to Their Owners in That State.

Few Detroiters of the present generation know that Michigan was once a slave territory, or that the city of Detroit, for a period of nearly one hundred years, included a considerable number of slaves in its population, observes the Detroit News. The early French settlers lived largely by trading with the Indians. At first they bought furs only, but each spring the Indians of Michigan would make war raids into territory south and west, and they would bring back captives whom they sometimes killed by torture, but later they found it more profitable to sell them to the white settlers as slaves. Most of these Indian slaves were from the Pawnee tribe.

Later negro slaves were brought to the East, principally in the state of New York. When the British took possession in 1760 they found quite a number of slaves, Indians and negro, and they continued the practice. The census of the district in 1773 showed 46 men and 39 women slaves in a community that numbered less than 300 adult white men. In 1872 there were 179 slaves in Detroit. The ordinance of 1787 forbade slavery in the Northwest territory, but Detroiters paid no attention to this Constitutional act. There were enough negroes in Detroit in 1807, slave and free, to enable Governor Hull to organize a company of colored militia.

In 1818 the assessor for Wayne county made slaves taxable property, and this proved a discouragement to slave holding. By 1832 there were only 32 slaves left in Michigan territory, and in 1836 the last one had been manumitted. Less than 20 years later Michigan, having found slaveholding unprofitable, became ardently abolitionist, and Detroit was converted into a terminal of the "underground railway," through which runaway slaves from the South found their way to freedom in Canada.

ANIMAL HEROES IN WARFARE

Some Praise Should Be Spared for the Dumb Brutes Who Gave Their Lives for Liberty.

There was one factor for victory in the war which we overlook in passing out the praise and medals.

To the dumb animals who bore much of the battle's brunt, to the horses, mules and dogs, great credit is due. Patient, plodding, brave, obedient creatures of faithfulness!

Wondrous fine the steed of officer, but equally grand the sturdy haulers of caisson and gun carriage!

But of limitless jokes, the long-eared, lean-legged, tuft-tailed army mule has glorified himself. Endless the supply trains he tugged fagging distances, across shell swept spots and through fierce fire.

The Red Cross dog, too, and the sledge dogs in the Alps have been canine heroes, leaving into the jaws of death on missions of mercy or pulling precious packloads among mountain peaks and passes.

Perpetual pasturage would be a just reward for our four-footed fighters, with freedom from further work. To Fido, allot choice bones to gnaw and if you'd make his home dog heaven rid the world of fleas for these, the "dogs of war."

At the entrance of this Paradise park or preserve, place a shaft to record for posterity a tribute to the war's 42311 animal dead.—Toledo News-Bee.

Forecasting Storms.

By means of what is believed to be a new scientific discovery, it is claimed that weather forecasts may be made with reasonable accuracy two weeks in advance.

As a result of research, conducted by a former chief of the weather bureau and a representative of the Smithsonian Institution, it has been found that there are rifts in the upper clouds of the solar atmosphere which cause a variation in the amount of heat radiated to the earth. It is said the investigators have discovered the period of time between the passage of a heat rift in the solar atmosphere and the appearance of resulting storms on the earth.

It has been found that at times these heat rifts persist for several months and that they have produced corresponding disturbances here.

Typewriter Used As a Pendulum.

In the show window of a downtown typewriter concern stands an imposing looking clock more than six feet tall. It is attractive, but what especially invites the attention is the pendulum. The bob is unlike any other in the city, being a full sized typewriter, one that could be set up on a desk and put in active use.

The suspended typewriter swings to and fro all day long. Judging from the excellent time the clock keeps, the typewriter bob does its work faithfully and well.—New York Times.

Power Problem in England.

In its reconstruction thinking, the question of electric power development in Great Britain is engaging the minds of many experts, and it is probable that the government will take some part in the movement. It is proposed to utilize the great mineral resources of the country for production of electric power on a huge scale, and for the conservation and more economic use of the country's coal resources. The idea is to divide the country into large areas for power distribution.

SAID HE SAW HELL AFLOAT

Some Excuse for Backwoodsmen's Story When He First Saw the Steamboat Armenia.

Competition for passenger trade among steamboat companies on the Hudson river in the early days of steam navigation went so far sometimes that it defeated its own ends and was somewhat amusing in the retrospect. Such was the case with the Armenia, one of the first boats built which was fast enough to make west of the trip from New York to Albany by daylight. This was for the purpose of attracting passengers who wished to view the beautiful river scenery, but for fear that scenery alone would pull on the passengers, the owners also installed a steam callopie. The callopie was simply a series of steam whistles pitched in various keys of sufficient number to play simple tunes. The Armenia was considered something remarkable when she first appeared, as indeed she was. The demand on her boilers for steam to blow the callopie whistles was so great, however, that the expense of furnishing the passengers with steam tunes as well as speedy transportation was more than the owners could afford.

The story is told of a Cut-kill backwoodsmen, who, while visiting a river town for the first time, saw the Armenia plying along before dawn, spouting sparks and smoke and with all her discordant whistles blowing. On his return home he told a wonderful tale of seeing the devil going up the river in a sawmill with all the devils of hell on board shrieking in awful torment.

MADE FAMOUS BY RESULTS

Events of History Remembered by What They Meant to Their Own and Succeeding Ages.

There are enterprises, military as well as civil, that sometimes check the current of events; give a new turn to human affairs, and transmit their consequences through ages. We see their importance in their results, and call them great, because great things follow. There have been battles which have fixed the fate of nations. These come down to us in history with a solid and permanent influence, not created by a display of glittering armor, the rush of adverse battalions, the stinking and rising of pennons, the flight, the pursuit, and the victory; but by their effect in advancing or retarding human knowledge, in overthrowing or establishing despotism, in extending or destroying human happiness. When the traveler pauses on the plains of Marathon, what are the emotions which strongly agitate his breast? Not, I imagine, that Grecian skill and Grecian valor were here most signally displayed; but that Greece herself was saved. It is because to this spot, and to the event which has rendered it immortal, he refers all the succeeding glories of the republic.—Daniel Webster.

Friendship.

We remember how Doctor Gladden used to preach upon friendship, which he regarded as the practical form of religion. When a man's heart is right he is quite sure to be friendly. There is no hate, no envy, no suspicion, no discourtesy, no ill temper. To be without these is the fulfilling of the law which is love and there is religion. Much more of it is needed than appears in business, in society, in politics. In fact, there is room for a good deal more. The test of a man's religion is found in the extent and quality of his friendship. It must not be the friendship of etiquette simply, nor even of good fellowship. It is the habit or condition of a person that grows out of his spirituality. There is not much use in a man's participating in all the means of grace if he hates his neighbor. And yet how many there are of that kind. There is nothing that the coming reconstruction of society needs so much as friendship. It is a sort of treason to neglect it.—Ohio State Journal.

Departed Marine Glories.

In 1867, fully half of the world's tonnage flew the Star and Stripes. We far outnumbered, and for nearly two decades had outnumbered even England herself. For 20 years our clipper ships had been the pride of the nation. There was not a port of the seven seas—not even Japan—that was closed to them. And still today, in the quiet New England streets of Salem and Newburyport and Port-mouth, one finds in the old-time captains' houses the treasures of the Orient. In Essex street, Salem, stands the sturdy stone structure of the Asiatic bank; the Pacific bank still does business on the island of Nantucket—only two of the many mute memorials of the glory of the American merchant marine more than half a century ago.

Quaint Old Eastport.

The quaint old town of Eastport, Me., which is but a little way from the easternmost point in the United States, is of interest because during the War of 1812 a British fleet sailed into the harbor and took possession of the town and fort without firing a shot. Here British troops remained until the exact boundary between the United States and Canada had been determined. With the exception of the interval indicated above, American troops occupied the fort from 1808 until 1875. In the latter year it was abandoned and later the property was sold to private individuals, who turned the buildings into dwellings.

Why Army Mule Is Valuable.

The horse and the mule are not used interchangeably by the army. Therefore the lack of good horses is to the army men particularly lamentable. If the task requires quickness and courage, if it is one that a sense of pride or a love of parade will carry through, the horse is chosen. Therefore the cavalry and artillery use only the horse. If there is a hard, thankless job to be done day after day through any conditions and over all kinds of trails, if there must at times be short rations, then the mule gets the call. He will go forward uncomplainingly, doing more work day in and day out than any horse, and at night he will ask for 25 per cent less grain. He will thrive on this, and at the end of a hard campaign he squealing and kicking up his heels when the horse would be reduced to ineffectiveness.

Why B-Zol gives 30 per cent more mileage and no carbon trouble

THAT B-Zol gives 30 per cent more mileage, more power and absolute freedom from carbon trouble and engine "knocking" is a tested fact! Here are the principal reasons:

- 1.— Each gallon of B-Zol contains 20 per cent more heat units than a gallon of gasoline, and its nature is such that a higher percentage of each gallon is consumed—which means less waste.
- 2.— B-Zol gives no carbon trouble and no "knocking" at low or high speed because it can be run with excess air and because the compression and ignition are such as to make a smoother explosion—
- 3.— Less lubricating oil is required when B-Zol is used because B-Zol does not condense and mix with the cylinder oil, as does gasoline.

Make a trial for yourself and prove these statements.
